WYBRON TO OFFER ROYALTY FREE RDM SOURCE CODE AT LDI 2007

Colorado Springs, CO – October 17, 2007 – Wybron, Inc., a leader of entertainment, houses of worship and architectural lighting technology, today announced that it will be giving away RDM (Remote Device Management) responder source code with a royalty free license at LDI. The license is available to any recognized manufacturer of professional lighting equipment who wishes to add the RDM protocol onto their devices. The software will be available at LDI in Wybron's booth #813 in the Orange County Convention Center in Orlando, Florida from November 16 to November 18, 2007.

"Since we launched our InfoTrace System last year, our customers tell us they really want all of their professional lighting devices to communicate and give maintenance and troubleshooting feedback," said Larry Turner CEO of Wybron. "By giving away the RDM source code, we hope to support the professional lighting industry's universal adoption of the RDM standard."

"We think RDM is especially important because it gives users the ability to secure vital information from individual devices, making it easier to maintain and troubleshoot the entire installation," said Miles Dudgeon Marketing Director of Wybron. "We are excited that our customers in the architecture, church, cruise ship and theater space are adopting the RDM standard."

Implementing the royalty free source code will enable a lighting fixture to respond
